

GARY BROWN'S ESSENTIAL BAIT FISHING RIGS

FLOAT FISHING FOR LUDERICK RIG

As you will see from the diagram there is no difference between the two rigs, except that the long stemmed float on the right sits higher in the water. This would be used when there is a fair amount of white water about. When the conditions are a lot smoother and the bite may be more tentative you can set the top of the float lower in the water, allowing the fish to pull the float under with less resistance.

When targeting luderick off the rocks or near the end of the river entrance you will often also get drummer take off with the bait.
